

A small server you can set up in about an hour: what to click, which channels to make, and text you can paste in. It is built around what Dexora players do: show off rare catches, trade, open packs, fight in the Arena and report bugs.

Keep these four things in mind

- Start small. An empty channel makes a server look dead. Open with the 12 public channels below and split one only when it gets too busy to follow.
- Discord adds to the game, it doesn't replace it. Trades, friend codes and challenges still happen in Dexora. Discord is where people find each other.
- Keep it free. Dexora is non-commercial, so leave Server Subscriptions and the Server Shop off, and don't take donations or sell perks.
- Skip bots for now. Discord's own Onboarding, AutoMod, forums and scheduled events cover a small server. Fewer bots also means fewer accounts with access to your server.

Part 1. Create the server (15 minutes)

1. Create it. Click + in Discord's left bar, then Create My Own, then For a club or community. Name it Dexora. Use your own art for the icon, with no Nintendo or Pokémon logos.
2. Protect your own account first. Turn on two-factor authentication under User Settings. If someone takes over the owner account, they take over the whole server.
3. Turn on Community. Go to Server Settings, then Enable Community. Discord will ask you to:
   - require a verified account before members can message,
   - turn on the explicit media filter for all members,
   - choose a rules channel (#rules) and a private updates channel (#mod-log).

   Create those two channels first so you can pick them.
4. Lock @everyone down. Under Roles, then @everyone, turn off Mention @everyone and Create Invite. Links posted by you then stay the official way in.
5. Make one permanent invite. Create an invite from #welcome, set it to Never expire and No limit, and keep that link. It's the one to put in the game.

Skip Discovery for now. A listing needs 1,000 members and an 8-week-old server. It also puts public channel content on a web page, starting November 2026. A fan project using Nintendo's characters is better off growing through its own players and invite links.

Part 2. The channels

Create the categories from top to bottom. Read-only means members can read and react but not post. A forum works best where each topic needs its own thread, because posts stay findable.

Channel	Type	What it's for in Dexora
#welcome	Read-only	What Dexora is, the link to play, and where to go first.
#rules	Read-only	Required by Community. Paste the rules from Part 5.
#announcements	Announcement	New versions and fixes. Post the headlines from What's New in the game.
#events	Read-only	The current event, its dates, its costumes and hunt, and what comes next.
HANG OUT
#general	Text	Anything goes.
#show-your-catches	Text, images	Shiny and rarer forms, Alphas, finished Dex goals, your trainer card.
#card-pulls	Text, images	Pack openings, God Packs, binders. Pulls are the most shareable moment in the game.
PLAY TOGETHER
#help	Forum	Questions. Tags: Catching, Evolving, League, Arena, Cards, Account, Answered.
#trading	Forum	Offers and wants, with friend codes. The trade itself happens in the Trade Center. Tags: Offering, Looking for, Done.
#battles	Text	Finding Arena opponents (online matches are between friends), League advice, ranked talk.
MAKE THE GAME BETTER
#bug-reports	Forum	One bug per post, using the template in Part 5. Tags: New, Confirmed, Fixed, Can't reproduce.
#suggestions	Forum	One idea per post. Members vote with a reaction. Tags: Idea, Planned, Done, Not planned.
STAFF (PRIVATE)
#mod-chat	Text	Moderators talk things over here.
#mod-log	Text	Community updates from Discord and AutoMod alerts.

Only add these when you need them

Channel	Add it when
#event-hunt	Event talk is taking over #general during a popular week.
#fan-art	People post art often enough that it gets lost in #general.
#ranked	Ranked talk is crowding out Arena matchmaking in #battles.
Voice lounge	People actually ask for one. An empty voice channel just looks empty.

Part 3. Roles

Role	How you get it	What it does
Owner	You	Everything. Keep it on your account only.
Moderator	You choose them	Timeout, kick, delete messages, manage threads. No Administrator permission.
Bug Hunter	You give it for confirmed bug reports	A thank-you. It rewards the most useful thing a player can do.
Update Pings	Picks it in Onboarding	Pinged for new versions.
Event Pings	Picks it in Onboarding	Pinged when an event opens or is about to close.
Traders	Picks it in Onboarding	Can be pinged by people looking for a trade partner.

Ping these roles instead of @everyone. People who chose a ping rarely mute the server.

Require 2FA for moderators. Turn this on under Server Settings, in the Safety section. A hijacked moderator account can do real damage.

Part 4. Onboarding and safety

Onboarding (Server Settings, then Onboarding)

Discord currently needs at least 7 default channels, with at least 5 where everyone can view and post. Use #welcome, #announcements, #events, #general, #show-your-catches, #card-pulls, #help and #trading. If Discord says that isn't enough, add #battles. Then ask one question:

> What do you want pings for? (members can pick several)
> New versions → Update Pings
> Events → Event Pings
> Trading → Traders, and shows #trading > Battling → shows #battles

AutoMod (Server Settings, then AutoMod)

- Turn on the built-in filters for suspected spam and mention spam, and send alerts to #mod-log.
- Add a custom keyword rule that blocks the usual scams, and adjust it as you see new ones:

free nitro, nitro gift, steam gift, airdrop, sell account, buy account, sell save, buy coins, paypal, gcash

Slowmode

Set 5 to 10 seconds on #show-your-catches and #card-pulls during event weeks.

Scheduled events

Create a Discord event for each game event, so members get a reminder. Poncho Parade runs November 8 to 14 and Eevee Poncho Parade runs November 15 to 21. Add Grateful Harvest (November 22 to 28) once it's in the game.

Part 5. Text to paste

#welcome

Welcome to the Dexora community!
Dexora is a free browser game: walk, catch, trade, battle and collect the whole National Dex.

▶ Play: [your game link]
❓ Stuck? Ask in #help
🐛 Found a bug? Post in #bug-reports
🔁 Want to trade? Post in #trading

Dexora is a free, non-commercial fan project. It has no ads or payments, and it isn't affiliated with Nintendo, Game Freak or The Pokémon Company.

#rules

1. Be kind. No harassment, hate speech or personal attacks.
2. Keep it safe for everyone. You must be at least 13. No adult content, and no asking anyone for personal information or photos.
3. No real-money deals. Don't buy or sell accounts, saves, Pokémon, cards or anything else from the game.
4. Trade in the game only. Use the Trade Center. Never accept an "I'll send mine first" deal outside it.
5. Never share your password. Staff will never ask for it, or for your email login.
6. No cheating. Don't share or ask for edited saves or exploits. If you find an exploit, report it to the owner privately.
7. Spoiler event secrets. Costumes are hidden until caught, so please mark new event art as a spoiler for the first two days.
8. No spam. That includes invite links: share yours only when someone asks for one.
9. Follow Discord's Terms of Service and Community Guidelines.

Staff decisions can be appealed by messaging the owner, calmly.

#bug-reports: pin this and set it as the forum's guidelines

Friend code or trainer name:
Mark your post Done when you've traded. Trades happen in the game's Trade Center.

Your first announcement

The Dexora Discord is open! 🎉
Show off your rarest catches, trade with other players, get help and tell us what to build next.
Poncho Parade starts November 8, and this is the place to show what you find. Grab Event Pings so you don't miss it.

Part 6. Connect it to the game

- Link from the game. Add a "Join the Discord" link on the You page, and announce the server in What's New. Send me the permanent invite and I'll add both.
- Post every update twice. Each What's New entry goes to #announcements too. Copy its headlines, and don't write a second version.
- Post at each event's turning points: the teaser, opening day, the last day, and the next event's reveal. The event posters make great images for this.
- Show the community's finds. Pin the best catch of the week in #show-your-catches. It costs nothing and makes rare forms feel more worth chasing.
- Use invites to grow. The game already rewards players whose friends get going. Remind people about You › Invite friends in your announcements, not in chat.

What Discord can't do

Moderators can't see or fix a player's save. Account problems, lost saves and accounts flagged for cheating come to you. Don't discuss a player's flag in public, and don't explain how cheat detection works. Never ask for anyone's password, and never pay out in-game items from Discord: the game has no way to do that safely.

Part 7. Running it

When someone breaks a rule

Step	Use it for
1. Reminder	Honest mistakes, like an off-topic post or a spoiler. Handle it kindly, and privately if you can.
2. Timeout	Repeat problems or heated arguments. An hour to a day.
3. Kick or ban	Scams, real-money trading, harassment, adult content, or anything involving a minor's safety. Ban straight away.

Report threats and anything that endangers a child to Discord directly. Don't try to handle those yourself.

Your first month

When	Do this
Before opening	Invite 3 to 5 regular players. Ask each to post a catch and a question, so nobody walks into an empty room.
Week 1	Answer every question yourself. Reply to bug reports, even with "thanks, looking into it".
Week 2	Pick your first moderator: someone already helpful and calm. Time zones that differ from yours are a bonus.
Each week	Update tags on bug reports and suggestions. Mark what you fixed, because people keep reporting when they see results.
Week 4	Check Server Insights once you have them, and remove or merge any channel nobody uses.
